

A magical garden scene at night. The sky is dark blue with a crescent moon and many small, bright stars. A path of stone leads through a garden filled with lavender flowers. On the left, a lantern sits on a stone pillar, and a glass jar is tilted, pouring a stream of white salt. On the right, another lantern hangs from a post, and two lit candles are on the ground. The overall atmosphere is warm and enchanting.

*There are some things I know for certain:
always throw spilt salt
over your left shoulder, keep rosemary
by your garden gate,
plant lavender for luck,
and fall in love
whenever you can.*